28 Light of a single wavelength is incident normally on a diffraction grating.

The resulting diffraction pattern is displayed on a screen.

Which change makes the first orders of intensity maxima further apart from each other on the screen?

A placing the screen closer to the diffraction grating

B using a diffraction grating with less separation between adjacent slits

C using a diffraction grating with more slits but keeping the same separation between adjacent slits

D using light with a shorter wavelength