39 A nucleus of a radioactive element emits an α-particle, then a β^- particle and then another β^- particle.

Which statement describes the final element that is produced?

A It is a different element of higher proton number than the original element.

B It is a different element of lower nucleon number than the original element.

C It is an isotope of the original element.

D It is the same element as the original element but with a different proton number.