32 The resistance of a filament lamp increases as the current in it increases.

What is the reason for this?

A The charge of each charge carrier increases.

B The potential difference across the filament decreases.

C The power dissipated by the filament decreases.

D The temperature of the filament increases.