

- 3 Which statement about errors in measurements is correct?
- A An accurate set of measurements always has a small random error.
 - B A precise set of measurements always has a small systematic error.
 - C A random error can be reduced by taking an average of several measurements.
 - D A systematic error creates a random set of measurements spread out about the true value.